Routes scheme could be just the job to find work

JOBSEEKERS in Tottenham can get on track to a career through Haringey Council's Routes to Work scheme.

The scheme aims to help residents tap into the job opportunities available, not just in Tottenham or borough-wide, but also across the capital.

The area's transport links – with central London just 15 minutes away – make it ideal for commuting to work, says the council.

Special advisers will also offer hands-on practical advice and support with CV writing, job searching, applications and interviews.

A video featuring the shared experiences of some of those who have benefited from the scheme has been made aimed at encouraging others to take advantage of the support available.

Joe Goldberg, the council's cabinet member for economic development and social inclusion, said: "We want Haringey's residents to be first in line for employment opportunities, not just within the borough but across London.

"That's why Routes to Work is about highlighting how easy it is for Tottenham's residents to reach the best that the capital has to offer, while ensuring they have the support they need to win the jobs they want."

THREE HELD OVER

Scene of the abuse: The retail park

'HITLER' TAUNTS

THREE men have been arrested in connection with an alleged anti-Semitic attack in which Jewish shoppers were pelted with laughing gas canisters by racist thugs yelling: "Hitler is on the way."

The empty canisters of nitrous oxide, a legal high used by clubbers, were reportedly hurled at a woman and two men in Tottenham Retail Park last Wednesday evening by the occupants of a pick-up truck.

Before throwing the objects, they are alleged to have shouted: "Hitler is on the way to you, Heil Hitler, Heil Hitler, Heil Hitler."

The incident was reported to the Stamford Hill branch of Shomrim, a neighbourhood civilian patrol group, which also covers South Tottenham. Shomrim volunteer Michael Blayer claimed the victims had been targeted deliberately because of their distinctive appearance as members of the area's large Orthodox Jewish community.

A 24-year-old man was arrested last Friday on suspicion of a religiously aggravated public order offence after he presented himself at a north London police station. Later the same evening, a 22-year-old man and an 18-year-old man voluntarily attended a north London police station and were arrested on suspicion of a religiously aggravated public order offence.

A Metropolitan Police spokesman said: "All three have been bailed to a date in late February. Inquiries continue." Anyone with information about the incident is being asked to call the police non-emergency line on 101 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Prison van four remanded in custody

THREE men from Haringey charged with a fourth person in connection with an alleged plot to spring two convicts from a prison van last month were further remanded in custody at Woolwich Crown Court last week.

Nathan Mason, 30, of Vicarage Road, Tottenham, Gokay Sougucakli, 19, of The Roundway, Tottenham, and Ozcan Eren, 31, of Douglas Road, Wood Green, are accused of trying to help Izzet Eren, 32, and Erwin Amoyas-Gyamfi, 29, escape custody close to Wood Green Crown Court, along with Eren Hayser, 25, of Kettering Road, Enfield.

Mason and Sougucakli also face charges of carrying imitation firearms and driving in a stolen car.

All four were remanded for a plea and case management hearing at the same court on Monday, February 29. A provisional trial date has been set for Friday, May 6.

Churchman is honoured

A CLERGYMAN who has helped foster improved police community relations on the Broadwater Farm Estate, in Tottenham, since the 1985 riots was awarded a British Empire Medal in the New Year Honours.

Archbishop Kwaku Frimpong-Manson, of Reconciliation International, an evangelical ministry and community support group that operates from the estate, received the gong in recognition of many years of work supporting others.

The 65-year-old Ghanaian came to Britain two years after the riots and has lived and worked in Tottenham for nearly 30 years, overseeing many of the improvements to the estate as chairman of the Broadwater Farm Residents' Association from 1994 to 2009.

He has also served as chairman of the Tottenham branch of Churches Together England and is a founding member of the Peace Alliance.

"I am very proud to be honoured," he said. "I wanted to see change and I have seen change. When you are passionate about your work, there is no need to retire."

"I live by the motto, the beauty of life does not depend on how happy you are but how happy others can be because of you," he added.

Also in the honours list was Dr Adi Cooper, the independent chairwoman of Haringey's Safeguarding Adults Board, who was awarded an OBE for services to adult social services.

Met apology 'empty', say family after 2010 unexplained death

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

POLICE have apologised to the family of a man who died in unexplained circumstances five years ago after a second investigation into his death again failed to discover what happened.

The Met's commissioner Sir Bernard Hogan-Howe has also apologised personally to the family for a catalogue of errors in the initial investigation into Kester David's death.

His badly burnt body was found under a railway arch off Broomfield Lane, in Palmers Green, on July 7, 2010.

Officers from Enfield, who carried out the original investigation, said that Mr David, a 53-year-old bus driver from Wood Green, had committed suicide by setting himself on fire.

However, his family launched a campaign calling on the police to re-open the case and to treat his death as a murder inquiry.

Campaigners argued evidence found on Mr David's computer after his death proved he had been a police informant and was killed by drug dealers.

A year after his death an internal investigation led by Inspector Brian Casson, of the Met, found there had been a "catalogue of errors" and a "failing in duty" in the original investigation as full CCTV and mobile phone records were not checked and witnesses had not been interviewed by Enfield police officers.

Despite the case being re-opened in 2012 with a series of witness appeals, it is now formally closed and the death remains unexplained.

In his apology, the commissioner said: "I have met Kester's mother Winifred and his brother Roger to tell them how sorry I am that there were shortcomings in our original handling of the investigation into his death.

"There were things that should have been done, which were not. It is also unacceptable that a grieving family were treated with such insensitivity. At a time when they should have been able to rely upon us we let them down."

However, Mr David's brother, Roger Griffiths, said the apology was "empty" as it came 18 months after the Independent Police Complaints Commission said they should apologise.

He said that the lack of justice and the lack of any clear answers from the police had been a burden for the family for five years.

"There is someone out there who has killed someone," he said. "I believe the police know who they are, but don't want to draw attention to the fact that they failed to look after one of their informants in this way."

He said that when the family looked at his brother's laptop they found he had been working for the police as an informant. He believes the police have covered up the truth.

"If the police had come to us at first and told us he was an informant, we would have understood," added Mr Griffiths.

He says the family are pursuing legal action against the Met.

Much planning needed in £13million jewel heist, judge tells jury

THE multi-million-pound Hatton Garden jewel heist must have involved considerable planning, research and preparation, a jury was told.

During his summing-up at the end of the seven-week trial at Woolwich Crown Court of four men who deny burglary and conspiracy charges, Judge Christopher Kinch told jurors the prosecution alleges that four others who have admitted their role in the £13million Easter bank holiday robbery would only have involved others they trusted.

Mr Kinch reminded the jury that they should consider the evidence from covert police recordings made in cars belonging to two admitted ringleaders - Terry Perkins, 67, of Heene Road, Enfield, and John "Kenny" Collins, 75, from, Islington, north London, when conversations were had about the four defendants currently on trial.

He said that their defence teams had said there were innocent explanations for any contacts they had with any of the men who have admitted involvement in the heist.

Huge Doyle, 48, of Riverside Gardens, Enfield, denies a charge of conspiracy to convert or transfer property and an alternative charge of concealing, converting or transferring jewellery or other stolen property.

William Lincoln, 60, of Bethnal Green, east London, Jon Harbison, 42, from Benfleet, Essex, and Carl Wood, 58, of Elderbeck Close, Cheshunt, deny conspiracy to burglar and conspiracy to conceal, convert or transfer property.

The jury is due to retire this week.

Chickenshed feels the force

TAKING a break from the red carpet glamour of the latest stellar blockbuster, one legendary droid chose to step off the promotional treadmill to take in some home-grown culture at a theatre company in the borough.

Actor Anthony Daniels, better known to Star Wars fans as pompous C3PO, paid a visit to Southgate to see Chickenshed Theatre's show, The Twelve Days of Christmas.

According to one Chickenshed insider, once his fellow audience members realised a star was in their midst, the atmosphere inside the auditorium at the theatre, in Chase Side, was electric.

A spokeswoman from Chickenshed told the Advertiser that the actor, who stars in the latest Star Wars blockbuster The Force Awakens, met the cast after the show – and despite having been in the glare of red carpet paparazzi flashbulbs since the film's British premiere last month, he posed for photographs, including the one right, with members of the theatre company.

The spokeswoman added: "He was the most delightful and friendly person and was so happy to meet and chat with everyone he met. There was a wonderful atmosphere in the theatre as the whispers spread like wildfire when people recognised him and seriously couldn't believe that this legendary actor was in the building."

The star himself took to Twitter afterwards to praise all involved in the show.

He said: "I saw the The Twelve Days of Christmas at Chickenshed. I'd give a Tony Award to each of the 100-plus cast and crew. It was spectacular. I hope more towns think about starting their own Chickenshed."

Intimate performances on road to stardom for Bowie

RONA HANSON/PA

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

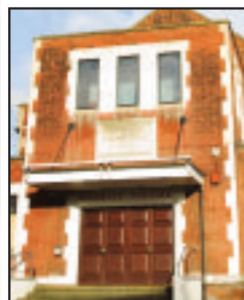

DAVID Bowie may have performed at some of the biggest rock stadiums – but few could have predicted what a pop legend he would become when he appeared in Palmers Green 47 years ago.

His death on Monday at the age of 69 from cancer stunned fans worldwide.

But the artist, known for his musical innovation and experimentation, was little known when he took to the stage at the Intimate Theatre, in Green Lanes, as an actor in a mime improvisation on March 25, 1968.

He had released a solo album at that time, but his big breakthrough with Space Oddity was still eight months away and the single Laughing Gnome, which he had released the previous year, would not be a hit until 1973.

Bowie wrote and performed five songs for the touring improv production titled Pierrot in Turquoise, which ran for eight nights at the Intimate.

Search is on for heroes of volunteering

A CALL has gone out for "super heroes" to get involved in volunteering in Enfield.

The cast of Snow White and the Seven Super Heroes, which is running at the Millfield Theatre, in Silver Street, Edmonton, this week are backing a campaign to find real-life heroes.

Superman, Captain America, Green Arrow, Flash, Black Widow, Supergirl and Wonder Woman supported a call for more people to get involved in their community.

Yasemin Brett, Enfield Council's cabinet member for community organisations and culture said: "Every day volunteers are doing something that makes a difference."

"It can be helping in a charity shop, coaching young people at a sports club, hearing young children read, visiting an older person, offering help at a food bank, becoming a friend of the libraries and parks, or sharing an interest to inspire others."

"We have a great volunteering tradition in Enfield and want even more people to give their free time to really transform the lives of people in genuine need of help and assistance. Volunteering also helps people to develop and improve their own job prospects and can be enjoyed because it is so worthwhile."

Volunteers in Enfield can share their experience at www.enfield.gov.uk/heroes

Cycle Enfield plans have come under intense scrutiny...

Consultation sparked a 'fantastic feedback'

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A COUNCIL chief is adamant that the response to the Cycle Enfield consultation for Enfield Town and Southbury Road has been "fantastic" despite reports that an overwhelming number of residents are opposed to the scheme.

Daniel Anderson, cabinet member for environment, battled away rumours that the consultation into the two sections of the Mini Holland scheme will return negative responses, as has been suggested by some residents and campaigners opposed to the scheme.

"There is no substance in these rumours and reports," he said. "Our officers are still working their way through the responses."

"The consultation only closed in December, just before Christmas. It takes about five or six weeks from the closing of a consultation to report stage. What I can say is that there has been a fantastic feedback from our residents."

There were two options included in the Enfield Town consultation that closed on December 18.

One would see a cycle lane in the middle of Church Street, with both east and westbound buses passing on each side. The second option would see cyclists separated from east-moving buses by a landscaped border. Both options would see two-way traffic in Cecil Road.

The Southbury Road proposals include a string of bus stop boarders, which opponents to the scheme argue pose a danger to passengers as they would be getting off into a bike lane.

The plan would also see the end to on-street parking from parts of Southbury Road.

Nick Dines, a Conservative councillor for Chase ward who lives just off Southbury Road, told the Advertiser: "I am not surprised that the apparent reaction to the Southbury Road scheme has been so negative. The road is simply not suitable for cycle lanes to be created, as any Enfield resident who uses the road or lives near to it could have told the council if they had been asked at the outset of this ridiculous process the council has already spent millions of pounds on it."

"The Southbury Road element really encapsulates to me the flaw behind Cycle Enfield. Of course, people want safer cycling conditions – but instead of genuine consultation with people who live in our borough the council has arrogantly tried to force through a plan that will cause traffic chaos on a road simply not wide enough for cycle lanes."

"It will also severely impact residents' parking not just on Southbury Road but also in the roads that lead off it. But no-one at the council seems to care about that."

Green's report hits out at mayor's lack of spending

BORIS Johnson has come under fire for spending just a fifth of the cash set aside to improve life for cyclists since 2008 on outer London boroughs.

The criticism comes in a report by Green Party London Assembly member Darren Johnson.

The Outer London Lost Cyclists report found that just five London boroughs will have had any junctions improved or any superhighways, quietways or Mini Holland schemes completed by May.

Darren Johnson said that the Mayor of London's legacy would rest in the hands of his successor after the election in May.

The report calls for the mayor to seek extra powers from the government to be allowed to veto councils who block cycling improvements.

Darren Johnson said: "We are now seeing some top-quality cycle lanes in parts of central London and that is very welcome, but people who want to cycle in outer London have had a raw deal while Boris Johnson has been in office."

"He delayed and cancelled the superhighways he promised to link outer London communities with the centre and he failed to make the big intimidating junctions safer for cyclists."

"We know that millions of short suburban car trips could be made by bike instead, freeing up road space, cleaning up the air and making people fitter."

"This mayor dithered for years, then finally started to build some quality schemes such as the Waltham Forest Mini Holland. The next mayor must expand this programme and complete all of the superhighways and quietways in the pipeline to kickstart an outer London cycling revolution."

But the mayor's cycling commissioner denied that the suburbs had been ignored, citing a litany of improvements in the pipeline for cycling infrastructure.

He said: "The mayor has made an unprecedented investment in outer London cycling. It includes transformative Mini Holland schemes in the borough of Enfield as well as Kingston and Waltham Forest. There will be new superhighways, town centre transformations and new cycle routes – the single biggest ticket items in the entire cycling programme."

"Further major town centre transformations are planned in Richmond, Ealing and Newham as well as new superhighways in Barking, Hounslow, Haringey, Ealing and Barnet. A new riverside cycle path is planned in Greenwich and cycle superhubs in Bexley, Greenwich and Hounslow."

'Give the money back' demand as MP's poll reveals little support

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

MILLIONS of pounds awarded to the borough by the Mayor of London should be handed back to Boris Johnson, according to Enfield Southgate's MP.

David Burrowes announced the results of his Cycle Enfield "referendum" at a public meeting at the Palmers Green triangle, Green Lanes, yesterday morning.

According to the Conservative MP, 75 per cent of constituents polled are adamantly opposed to plans to transform Green Lanes into a cycling haven – proving that unless the council comes up with radically different plans the money should be handed back to City Hall, untouched.

Mr Burrowes told the Advertiser that he had sent out polling cards to 17,000 constituents living in Palmers Green, Winchmore Hill, Grange Park and Southgate Green. Of those polled, 2,828 responded by posting the cards back, complete with their tick-box response stating whether they were in favour of the scheme, or not.

Breaking down the responses he said that just 17 per cent were in favour of the scheme with 5.9 per cent saying they were partly in favour of the scheme.

"Boris should take the money back," Mr Burrowes said of the £30m awarded to the council to implement infrastructure changes in the borough.

"The council needs to go back to the drawing board, but it is clear that there is not public support for the scheme in its current form and for this scheme to progress The council needs broad approval from the community."

Asked if those who returned cards were essentially a self-selecting group, the MP countered that the same could be said of the council's official consultation.

"You could say that the council consultation was more self-selecting as people had to go online to complete that form," he said.

He contrasted his response rate with that of the council's.

"The council sent out 60,000 leaflets across the borough and directed people to an online consultation which resulted in 1,646 responses," he added.

However, Enfield Council's cabinet chief for environment Daniel Anderson, who is championing the scheme, dismissed Mr Burrowes's postcard campaign as "an utter disgrace".

"This whole thing was self-serving and very dubious," he said. "There was no credible methodology and no scientific basis for collating the results or establishing who to canvas."

"We are treating this with the contempt it deserves. Mr Burrowes had a three-month window in which to come back to us within the consultation period. The report has been drawn up and we will be meeting with the partnership board this week to discuss the updated plans.

"We have a mandate to deliver Cycle Enfield and it will be going ahead. "Mr Burrowes is trying to take us backwards. It is an utter disgrace."

Limes lined up to boost park's trees

Park life: Limes are set to replace the trees ravaged by Dutch elm disease

ANNE MARIE SANDERSON

By Henry Ellis

news.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

AN avenue of trees which fell victim to Dutch elm disease in the 1970s is set to be replaced.

Enfield Council has given the green light for tree surgeons to get to work in Broomfield Park, in Palmers Green, more than 40 years after the original ash and elm trees died in 1971. However, in a letter sent to residents and posted on the Bowes & Bounds Connected web forum, the council's senior arboricultural officer Andy Robinson explained that the new trees would not be elms as the threat from Dutch elm disease is still present across the UK.

Instead, 19 lime trees planted as part of an attempt to replace the leafy avenue 35 years ago, will be left in place, with 50 new trees being planted in four rows following the original lines.

Five sickly trees will be cut down and six lime stumps will be pulled out as part of the project.

Lakes Estate Residents' Association chairman and Broomfield House Trust member Colin Younger said: "As a member of the trust, I have a vested interest and we are very pleased that this project is set to go ahead as it is part of the plans for the restoration of the historic house.

"It has been a long-term plan for the council to plant new trees and it is an asset that everyone will be able to enjoy. It will really improve the park."

Dutch elm and another disease, candidatus phytoplasma ulmi, known to have taken root in nurseries in Cambridgeshire, effect the vessels in an infected tree, meaning it can no longer absorb water and dies rapidly.

Dutch elm disease is originally thought to have come from Asia, but it was accidentally brought to the UK in 1927 in a batch of infected timber.

Passengers shocked by aircraft security scare

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

Returning home: Paul Morgan had been working in Ibiza

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

A MAN from Enfield spoke of his shock this week after an airline seat on a flight on which he was travelling was dismantled in front of passengers following a security scare.

Furniture designer Paul Morgan was returning home after working in Ibiza when his plane was dramatically halted as it was preparing to depart for London City Airport because it was feared a passenger was flying with a stolen or fake passport.

He said: "We were taxiing down the runway and were due to take off. They said there was a problem with the paperwork."

Mr Morgan, of Willow Road, said

passengers were told that the authorities in London were concerned that a passenger was flying on a stolen passport.

Mr Morgan described how a woman was escorted off the British Airways flight on Friday and said that officials "started to take her seat apart in front of us".

He said: "Lord knows what they would have done if they had found anything. I don't think they should have taken it apart in front of us."

"It was a bit surreal, everybody just wanted to get home."

Passengers were later evacuated and taken back through airline security.

Passengers got back on the aircraft and it started taxiing, but they were told the Spanish police were bringing sniffer dogs on board.

"They were going over everything," said Mr Morgan.

He said passengers had to disembark again and their bags were put through the baggage scanners for another check.

He regularly travels abroad for his business Rick Baker Ltd.

He said: "They kept saying we were not allowed to take off because London was not happy with the paperwork."

Once the plane was airborne, three-and-a-half hours late, the atmosphere was subdued, said Mr Morgan.

"It was only when we were actually in the air it dawned on us what happened," added the 51-year-old.

A BA spokeswoman said: "The aircraft returned after authorities realised a customer was travelling with incorrect documents."

"The customer was offloaded and, in line with normal security procedures, all customers and their bags were re-screened as a precaution."

Five rescued from fire at flats

FIREFIGHTERS rescued five people from a burning block of flats on Friday morning.

The blaze tore through a three-storey block of flats in Old Road, Enfield Highway, at 10am.

Two men were taken to safety by firefighters from a ground-floor flat, a man and a woman were rescued from the first floor of the building and a fourth man was led to safety from the second floor.

All five were suffering from smoke inhalation after their ordeal and the four men were taken to hospital.

Firefighters tackled the blaze for more than an hour before it was brought under control at 11am.

The cause of the fire is being investigated.

Snowdrop explodes

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

THE unseasonably mild weather has coaxed spring flowers in the borough into an early bloom.

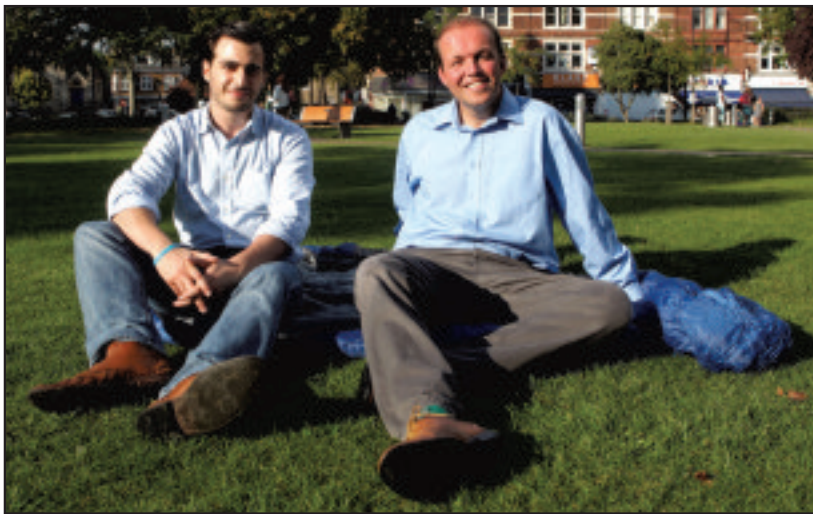

Snowdrops, which usually start peeking through the frosty earth in January, are already in full flower in the grounds of Myddelton House, in Bulls Cross, Enfield.

In another sign of unpredictable climes, daffodils have burst through the ground and have been spotted nodding in the breeze alongside the snowdrops. The early floral display is good news for galantophiles, (snowdrop lovers), who will be flocking to Myddelton House on Saturday, January 23, for a chance to scoop up a rare snowdrop bulb or two.

A decade ago gardener Bryan Hewitt discovered a new breed of snowdrop – one plant of which was sold at the sale last year for £100.

Burrowes in bid to help the homeless

Winter shelter supporter: David Burrowes, right, with Southgate Green ward councillor Alessandro Georgiou promoting the 2014 Big Sleep Out fundraiser

ruth.mckee@nlnews.co.uk

AN MP is lobbying parliament to demand action on preventing homelessness and rough sleeping.

David Burrowes, the Conservative MP for Enfield Southgate, tabled a debate in the House of Commons last week, saying that the plight of homelessness "should not be tolerated in 2016 Britain".

Addressing the leader of the house Chris Grayling about scheduling a debate on the issue, he said: "I was disturbed last night when I visited a winter night shelter hosted by St Andrew's Church in Southgate.

"I spoke to Arthur, who told me that if it was not for that night shelter, he would be travelling round on the night buses because he is not young or vulnerable enough to get housing."

Over the course of the coming months, Mr Burrowes has said he will be visiting shelters based in churches in his constituency where rough sleepers can be accommodated for a night to avoid the worst of the winter weather.

The MP has been a supporter of the Winter Night Shelter Scheme since 2013 when he helped set it up.

The scheme operates across churches where each night volunteers provide a hot meal and shelter for homeless men and women.

Mr Burrowes has also taken part in sleep-outs to raise awareness about the reality of sleeping rough.

Responding to his fellow Tory, Mr Grayling said: "I commend my honourable friend, who is typical of many people in the house who do unsung and unseen work in the community, visiting shelters, spending nights out with the homeless on the streets and in other situations. I commend him on what he is doing and on bringing the issue to the house.

"The best solution to homelessness is more homes and that is the incentive for what this government is doing, but I will ensure that the relevant ministers engage with my honourable friend to discuss what he has learned and to try to ensure that we do what we can to end the blight of homelessness."

Cloudy2Clear Windows – Service With A Smile!

It's been a crazy few months for Cloudy2Clear Windows. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes – not the frames has grown rapidly as homeowners take advantage of their services.

Managing Director Richard Power feels that it's all about service. 'Our product is simple. If your double glazing is misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 10 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Many tradespeople have struggled since last year and I honestly feel that during the good times a minority perhaps didn't focus on customer care as much as they should have done.

We make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle. I often get comments back from customers on how they really didn't expect that sort of service which, in a way, is very sad for the service industry as a whole.'

Cloudy2Clear service the Enfield, Edmonton, Palmers Green, Winchmore Hill & Southgate areas and Richard is finding that his approach is a major factor in his success. 'The truth is that it's not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. I get a huge amount of business from friends and family of people I've done work for, which just goes to show how much a little bit of effort is appreciated.'

So, if your windows are steamed up, broken or damaged give Richard a call for a free quotation on 0800 61 21 118 and he'll be happy to help!

Artistic director,
Millfield Arts Centre

THIS is already proving to be an energetic year for culture across Enfield.

Millfield Theatre has kicked off the new year with urban dance at its very best, as the reigning UK Street Dance Champions, Platinum PPA, perform their electric blend of urban pantomime, "Snow White and the Seven Superheroes".

I saw the final dress rehearsal and was thrilled by the commitment, dedication and focus of these incredibly talented young Enfieldians.

Platinum is just one of the many great dance and theatre schools across Enfield whose new terms are about to begin.

I can't think of a better way to nurture creativity, discipline and good physical and mental health than to enrol our children into one of these wonderful schools.

As a new year begins, I am sure, like me, you're thinking about how you can do more to improve your own health and well-being.

Engaging in arts and cultural activity is a great way to improve our mental health, not only in the way that it promotes community cohesion, as neighbours and friends gather together to have a shared experience at a show, exhibition or festival, but also how it challenges us to see the world through different eyes and helps us make sense of our place in an ever changing world.

There's also nothing like a good laugh or a hearty sing to make us feel better.

There's so much culture on offer across Enfield this year and I do hope you'll join us.

Change has to come to avert gridlock

FROM the beginning it has been clear that an underlying aim of the Mini Holland plans is to "reduce" traffic by making it safer and more pleasant to replace short, driver-only car journeys with cycled journeys.

Yet, Valerie Darville (Advertiser, December 30) asks the question: "Where will the traffic go?"

For heaven's sake. The bikes instead of cars issue has been answered enough times – through websites, at presentations and in the local press. Indeed I've laboured the point myself.

No doubt, as Councillor Michael Rye points out in his letter ("Labour must listen before it's too late"), drivers will adopt the selfish practice of rat-running where it's possible if the scheme goes ahead, but there are ways to discourage it if the realisation doesn't dawn that cycling is often likely to be more convenient and, if traffic is heavy, quicker.

The borough is expecting population growth of about 20 per cent. Inevitably, if the same per capita number of people continue to insist on driving on the same basis as now, gridlock will occur. The only solutions are more walking, cycling and use of buses. Get used to it, change has to come.

All this froth about traders losing trade because cars won't be able to park outside the shops is nonsense. Case studies worldwide say so and so does Enfield's pedestrianised, purpose-built Palace Gardens shopping centre, where parking is off-street and close to Church Street.

I'm staggered that people want to shop in the polluted hellhole which is currently Enfield Town's Church Street. By contrast, bikes are pollution-free and each bus produces considerably less pollution than a single modern diesel car.

David Hughes,

AN interesting letter was published in The Times recently about the demands, articulated mainly by one person, to remove the statue of Cecil Rhodes from Oriel College, Oxford.

It says: "This row is a classic instance of a small and unrepresentative minority of activists amplifying their influence beyond proportion."

Does this not remind one of a certain cycle path in Enfield?

Fares campaign helps struggling Londoners

THE start of 2016 brought the inevitable hike in public transport fares across the UK and I will certainly be feeling it in Enfield.

I commute for more an hour each way to my job in Victoria – the Transport for London website mockingly tells me this should take just 34 minutes – and from Arnos Grove onwards the journey is cramped, uncomfortable and unpleasant to the extreme.

If I lived in central London, which is, of course, completely unaffordable, my fare would be considerably cheaper, despite the fact it would be much easier for me to walk or cycle to work.

Sian Berry, the Green Party's London Mayoral candidate, has launched an exciting FairFares campaign, which is a really great opportunity to give Londoners some justice in their transport costs.

The three key measures of the plan are:

- The phased introduction of a flat fare structure, making zones a thing of the past, with the immediate abolition of zones 6 and 4.

- Justice for part-time workers, with a daily cap that matches the rates paid by monthly season ticket holders.

- A new One Ticket allowing changes across all modes to close the gaps for people who currently pay twice when changing from bus or train to the Tube as well as ensuring that people changing buses pay only once for their journey.

Ultimately, the Greens plan to bring in a flat fare on the Tube and trains by 2025, so that everyone's journey to work, regardless of where they are forced to live, costs the same.

The plan shows that outer London, including Enfield, would have markedly lower fares, important considering the proportion of people on low incomes in outer London is increasing.

The daily cap and One Ticket will bring some much-needed lowered transport costs for those who work part-time or rely on more than one bus to make their journeys.

People who work part-time are mostly women and more than half are paid less than the London Living Wage. Anything that can be done to help those struggling the most should be done.

How will it be paid for? Through increasing the congestion charge costs. The congestion charge makes up just 2.4 per cent of TfL's income, so the measures proposed will help to share the cost of managing transport in London more equally among different travellers.

As people on low incomes are much less likely to own cars, and much more likely to struggle with public transport costs, this is absolutely the right thing to do.

Make a big difference to young lives

IN Enfield there are 360 children in care – enough to fill 14 classrooms. These children are some of the most vulnerable in London.

Tragically, what they most need is the thing that many of us take for granted – a stable and loving childhood, where they can just be themselves.

Someone like you could make a huge difference to their lives. Foster carers don't need to be super-heroes, they come from all walks of life.

When you decide to take the life-changing decision to foster, Barnardo's will support you every step of the way so you don't have to do it alone.

Barnardo's celebrates its 150th anniversary this year.

The charity was one of the first to place children with families and to train foster carers so they had the right skills to look after children.

If you're interested in fostering with Barnardo's, visit www.barnardos.org.uk/fostering, or call us on 0800 0277 280, Monday to Friday.

Blow a whistle on bad driving

I AM pleased that the mayor has responded to sustained pressure from myself and road safety campaigners and rolled out a confidential whistleblowing scheme for London bus drivers.

This should help reduce road collisions and other incidents. Passengers will also benefit from staff being able to pass on complaints about issues of safety and comfort.

The number of people knocked down by London buses has been too high for too long.

By involving front-line staff more, the mayor's transport chiefs will get a better picture of what's going wrong and will hopefully be able to make the streets safer for everyone.

Leslie's OBE recognises his dedication to music

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

A LIFETIME devoted to music has built to a rousing crescendo for Leslie East.

The Enfield resident was awarded an OBE in the New Year Honours.

The 66-year-old, of Chase Court Gardens, will be accompanied by his wife singer Lilija Zobens and daughters Andra and Karoline, who also have careers in music, to Buckingham Palace to receive his award.

It recognises a lifelong commitment to supporting musicians in their careers.

He said: "I've been inundated with messages from people I have known congratulating me on the award."

Leslie studied music at King's College London from 1967 to 1975 and began writing reviews and articles while he was a postgraduate student.

In 1975, he became the director of music at the Guildhall School of Music & Drama, in central London, when he was just 26 and remained there for 11 years.

Within a year of starting, the job he helped the school move into its new home in the Barbican.

"That was incredible," he said. "I met Simon Rattle and Leonard Bernstein and composers like Michael Tippett, when I was working there. It was a great place to work."

He later became publishing director of music company Novello and Co and then joined the Associated Board of the Royal Schools of Music as managing editor of its publishing arm where he encouraged the publication of scholarly editions of music and contemporary music.

He said that the honour recognised his work with musicians, including "helping young musicians at the start of their careers".

Although he retired from his job as chief executive of the Associated Board of the Royal Schools of Music in December, 2014, he is still much involved in music.

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

In the honours: Leslie East has been awarded an OBE for his services to music

He is a trustee of the London Youth Choir, which works with young people across the city, including Enfield.

"You just see them blossom as people," Leslie added. "We take children as young as seven."

"They learn about music and they learn how to read about music."

He is delighted to be involved with the choir which offers bursaries for children who are unable to afford the fee to join.

Among his other interests, he is the chairman of the Association of British Choral Directors and has been involved in celebrating Latvian music in the UK.

He is also a freeman of the Musicians' Company and of the City of London.

Have say on fire service savings

By Henry Ellis

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.s

PEOPLE who live and work in Enfield are being urged to have their say on where the axe will fall when the London Fire Brigade makes its next round of cuts.

London Mayor Boris Johnson has ordered the brigade to find another £6.4million in savings in the next financial year.

One option for public consultation involves taking 13 engines out of service permanently – despite response times increasing, following the closure of ten fire stations and the removal of 14 fire engines in 2013.

Ten Enfield wards recorded an increase in response times in the 12 months up to last April.

Some of the savings made will go back into hiring more front-line staff to crew the brigade's remaining vehicles.

The 13 engines were taken out of service temporarily in London as the threat of strike action by the Fire Brigades Union loomed.

The brigade has a statutory obligation to provide emergency cover if its firefighters go on strike – but the union has settled its differences with the government and a second option would be to bring the 13 engines back into use while making the savings by cutting back-office staff and services.

Consultation: The London Fire Brigade must save £6.4m

Enfield and Haringey London Assembly member Joanne McCartney said: "With our fire services facing uncertain times, and response times already rising in Enfield and Haringey, it's important that local people have their say over the future of London's fire service. With front-line services at stake, it is hugely important that local people are given the opportunity to make their views known."

Teenagers are a beacon of health

By Henry Ellis

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

ENFIELD'S teenagers are setting the standard in health, according to a nationwide survey on habits and well-being.

The survey, carried out by Public Health England, found that just 3.5 per cent of the borough's 15-year-olds are regular or occasional smokers. Only Redbridge had a lower rate.

PHE also found that nearly 60 per cent are eating five or more portions of fruit and vegetables every day and less than two per cent regularly drink alcohol.

The results were drawn from a survey of 300,000 15-year-old boys and girls across England, who were asked questions ranging from physical health, to drug-taking, smoking and bullying, to paint a picture of teenage health in the country.

The Enfield arm of NHS watchdog Healthwatch compared how teenagers in the borough responded to the What About YOUth survey with their peers living in other parts of the country.

Enfield Council's cabinet member for education, children's services and protection Ayfer Orhan said: "It is great to see that young people in Enfield are leading the way in living responsible and behaving as good role models for the rest of London's teenagers.

'Source of pride': Council cabinet member Ayfer Orhan

"The council, its schools and other partners work really hard to create a safe environment in which young people can flourish and reach their potential and it is brilliant news that, at a time when young people are often unfairly maligned in the media, our youngsters are behaving sensibly and taking responsibility for their actions while living their lives to the full.

"We will continue to support our young people and work with parents, carers and schools to ensure they are able to make sensible and informed decisions about their lives and understand the consequences of the decisions they take so they can continue to grow into hard-working, responsible and valued members of society.

"These statistics should be a source of pride for everyone working with young people in Enfield."

MP in pledge to women detained

By Henry Ellis

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

EDMONTON MP Kate Osamor has vowed to fight for women being held at an immigration detention centre.

She led a debate last week on the state of healthcare provided to women waiting to learn if they face deportation at Yarl's Wood Immigration Removal Centre, in Bedfordshire.

The centre came under fire from HM Inspectorate of Prisons in August following a snap inspection in April.

Pressure group Women for Refugee Women and the Royal College of Psychiatrists have both criticised medical care at Yarl's Wood.

Medical Justice, a small UK charity which specialises in giving asylum seekers the chance to be examined by independent doctors, was told that access to patients at Yarl's Wood would be restricted.

Ms Osamor used the debate at Westminster Hall to highlight the need for more staff and extra counselling.

She also called on the government to abide by detention centre rules, which state that no-one who has been tortured, or whose health is likely to suffer if they are held, should be detained.

She said: "The situation has worsened since 2014. All detainees must have all the same services as the general public. Access to healthcare is a human right."

"There are also huge concerns about staffing levels. They are too low and this has direct links to healthcare."

Following the debate, she added: "I wanted to lead this debate after visiting Yarl's Wood and meeting women who told me the worst thing about the centre was healthcare."

"We are the only country in the EU who do not have a time limit on detention. This is appalling. Studies show detention has a lasting, damaging effect on the mental health of detainees and the government needs to more to address this."

John Shaw, managing director for G4S Public Services, which manages healthcare at Yarl's Wood, said: "Recent reports into Yarl's Wood recognise a number of the challenges which we inherited when we took over delivering the healthcare service. We have been reconfiguring the service to recognise a growing number of more complex medical needs."

"To better meet the needs of detainees, we have worked with NHS England to change our contract so that together we can ensure we are providing the right services."

"We have prioritised providing primary care. There are now more GP hours delivered at the centre and no detainee waits more than three days for a non-emergency appointment."

"We were appointed on the strength of our record in detention settings. We are committed to working with the NHS to raise the standard of service at Yarl's Wood and improve results for those who require medical care."

£50million savings to be made by 2019/20

Government cuts and an increase in demand for Council services from a growing population means that difficult decisions will have to be made about the future of many Council services. This is in addition to £118million savings made since 2010 – efficiencies alone are no longer enough.

What's on and what's coming

Dress rehearsal: Members of the Sleeping Beauty cast are put through their paces

Pantomime season is over – oh no, it isn't!

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

THE fun is set to continue for a while longer for panto lovers – with a latecomer to the ball.

With other shows packed up until the next panto season returns in November, Sleeping Beauty holds its opening night next Thursday.

The sparkling production by St Monica's Players extends the annual panto period which traditionally spans Christmas and New Year.

The show starts a four-night run at Palmers Green's Intimate Theatre on January 21, including matinee performances on Saturday, January 23, and Sunday, January 24.

It is a musical adaptation of the familiar fairytale by one of Enfield's oldest amateur dramatics groups.

Princess Aurora is cursed by the evil witch Maleficent, who declares that before the sun sets on her 16th birthday she will die by pricking her finger on the spindle of a spinning wheel.

As a preventative measure, the king places her in hiding, in the care of three good-natured, but not too bright, fairies.

Despite their protection she accidentally pricks her finger, but is saved from dying and falls into a deep sleep, which only a kiss from her betrothed true love Prince Rupert can awaken her from.

The lavish production has stunning sets, live music, dazzling dance routines and loads of gags

Warren McWilliams, who wrote the script and plays the Dame, Nurse Nelly, said: "I think it's important to stick to the traditional story line, but we have managed to make the story feel fresh and new, have added some great touches and chosen some excellent songs."

Director Chris O'Shea added: "We have an amazingly talented cast. This is the best panto of the lot!"

Leo is king of the wild frontier

THE REVENANT (15, 156 mins)

If film awards are bestowed for dogged determination and perseverance in the face of seemingly insurmountable odds, The Revenant will sweep next month's Oscars.

Mexican auteur Alejandro Gonzalez Inarritu chose to shoot his sprawling historical epic in chronological order using natural light.

These bold aesthetic choices limited filming to just a couple of hours each day and when Mother Nature decided to withhold snow from the unforgiving Canadian wilderness, the entire production moved to Argentina at considerable expense.

Actor Tom Hardy was forced to drop out of the comic book adventure Suicide Squad to accommodate the extended filming schedule, the budget ballooned and one crew member famously described the mood on set as "a living hell".

Trials and tribulations behind the scenes haven't tarnished Inarritu's audacious vision because The Revenant is a tour-de-force of technical brio and emotionally cold storytelling.

It's not a journey into the heart of darkness for the sentimental or faint of heart.

Explosions of violence are graphic and a horrifying bear attack early in the film unfolds in a single, unbroken take that shreds our nerves beyond repair.

Leading man Leonardo DiCaprio puts himself through the wringer for his art.

In one stomach-churning scene, the fervent vegetarian eats a wild bison's liver on camera because the role demands it. Such unswerving dedication makes him a deserved frontrunner for an Academy Award – and has just earned him a Golden Globe.

Intrepid explorer: Hugh Glass (Leonardo DiCaprio)

He plays 19th-century explorer Hugh Glass, who guides a team of fur trappers and hunters under the command of Captain Andrew Henry (Domhnall Gleeson).

The men come under attack from Native Americans led by tribal chief Elk Dog (Duane Howard), whose daughter Powaqa (Melaw Nakeh'o) has been kidnapped.

The interlopers flee for their lives and Glass is subsequently injured in a mauling from a grizzly bear, which is protecting its cubs.

Henry leaves behind two men, Fitzgerald (Hardy) and Bridger (Will Poulter), to tend to Glass and his son, Hawk (Forrest Goodluck), while the rest of the trappers head for safety.

"Glass is to be cared for...as long as necessary," orders the Captain, "and a proper burial when it's time. He's earned that."

Fitzgerald decides to expedite matters by killing Hawk and dragging Glass's near lifeless body into a freshly dug grave.

The explorer regains consciousness some time later and vows to hunt down the men who killed his boy.

"I ain't afraid to die," growls Glass. "I done it already."

The Revenant is a gruelling two-and-a-half hours in the company of a filmmaker who refused to compromise.

Aided by cinematographer Emmanuel Lubezki (Gravity, Birdman), Inarritu conjures a nightmarish and unflinching vision of a grieving father's revenge mission.

DiCaprio is mesmerising, dragging his wounded body across frozen landscapes before locking horns with Hardy's scowling rival in an adrenaline-pumped climax that leaves us gasping for air.

Barnfields
Estate Agents & Chartered Surveyors

An Early Spring?

For those people who have been thinking of moving, the New Year is commonly a popular time to start doing something about it. Each year estate agents eagerly anticipate the coming of the Spring Market. And like the bluebells that we have just seen in a Willow Road garden, it does seem to be arriving earlier as the years go by.

As both agents and TV programmes often advise, it does pay to give some thought and time to presenting a property in its best possible light before taking the plunge and inviting potential buyers into your living space. Tidy properties always sell best. It's not only the interior but also the outside spaces that are important. Our splendid view over Chase Green reveals lush grass about six inches deep, some very colourful flowers and, inevitably, weeds already making an appearance along borders. As for houses, the first thing that buyers normally see is a picture of the outside. So a spot of early-season gardening to increase kerb-appeal can pay dividends.

Another common feature of the New Year is a request for predictions, be it from the RICS (we contribute to the monthly Housing Market Survey) or from clients. This is never easy. Early signs suggest more of the same in 2016. That means an insufficient number of houses on the market to satisfy those who want to buy, although we could be pleasantly surprised. Given a steady economy, demand will remain high. Be they renters or owner occupiers, many people want to live in the area; which is a testament to the welcoming nature and cosmopolitan outlook of the people of Enfield.

We wish you all a Happy and Prosperous 2016

ACCURATE VALUATIONS IN ENFIELD

The main factors that affect the price achieved for your home are likely to be size, location and fittings. However, there are innumerable other variations that can add significant value.

Valuing properties in West Enfield is not like valuing properties elsewhere.

There are thousands of different styles and in some roads every other property is quite different to the next. The knowledge to appreciate these differences can only be built up over time.

At Ian Gibbs, our valuers have built up that knowledge with over 35 years of selling properties in the EN1/EN2 area and that experience heightens the chance of you realising the full potential of your greatest financial asset.

In print... ...or Online

We'll give you the best of both worlds...every week, all week!

In this rapidly moving technological age people are finding new ways to advertise, especially online via the internet. But contrary to what online sites are saying and common assumptions, print advertising is not dead. There are still benefits and disadvantages to both methods and the best way to succeed is to find a vehicle that covers both bases - and that's where we come in!

The Benefits of print advertising:

1. Print adverts last longer and will be seen often.
2. They will be seen by a large number of people and have the ability to hit a specific audience.
3. There is a more creative potential with print advertising.
4. There is a positive perception of newspaper advertising - it will encourage people to think the client is serious.

The Benefits of online advertising:

1. The advert content can be easily updated.
2. It's online 24/7, 12 months a year, all round the world.
3. A massive audience, with all ages now online.
4. Very quick response - you can be receiving candidates hours after posting your advert.

A delightful motorway cruiser

By Matt Joy

THE new Lexus RX is a flagship for the brand. It's a hybrid SUV (although it can be bought with a plain petrol engine) with an emphasis on comfort and easy driving, something that Lexus is very good at.

This has historically been a key model for the company – ever since the first generation reached British roads in 1998, it's been an upmarket accessory for the well-to-do.

Lexus has overhauled the NX, giving it an extra five per cent power and torque and improving its interior and exterior design. The result is a highly likeable – albeit expensive – premium SUV.

It's striking, to say the least. Angular, almost jaunty lines are now part of the Lexus design language – a stark contrast to the brand's fuddy-duddy luxu-barge image of yesteryear. Interesting design features such as the “floating roof” (black-out rear pillars) distinguish it from other SUVs. It doesn't have the kudos of Porsche or the Britishness of Land Rover, but it competes with them in the luxury stakes.

It's an SUV and generally performs adequately in terms of space. The front is indulgently large, with acres of leather in medium-to-upper trim levels. In the back seats is a different story with headroom limited. Lexus has added 24.4mm of legroom in the front and 22mm in the back, but the low roofline compromises second-row passenger comfort.

The boot is 453 litres with the seats up, extending to 924 with the boot folded. These van-like proportions give an added element of practicality in what is essentially a luxury vehicle – its price tag means that few people will be using this as a workhorse.

Oddment boxes in the passenger compartment are numerous. The cupholder's capacity is adjustable and can be altered to securely hold any reasonable size of beverage. In a cavity behind the switchgear is a wireless phone charging area.

A head-up display, the largest of its type currently on the market, beams important information (such as speed and cruise control settings) on to the windscreen within the driver's field of vision. The instrument binnacle shows a wide range of economy-related statistics, meaning that those wanting to get the most mileage (and lowest emissions) can do so easily. This isn't a driver's car – the emphasis is on smooth, comfortable progress.

That said, the driving experience of the RX has been sharpened up. Steering response is good, with pleasing weight in the corners and 30 different damping force levels – a versatile suspension system. Noise and vibration levels have been reduced using insulation, but the engine note (of the large V6 engine, producing 259bhp and 335Nm of torque) is augmented, allowing an impression of performance to reach the cabin. This slightly synthetic soundtrack may not be everyone's taste, but it could appeal to those making the transition to hybrid for the first time.

The same goes for the “flappy paddle” gearbox. The engine responds to the throttle in order to supply the correct amount of torque, but if you think you know better (you don't) you can “change up” or “change down”. All this really does is alter the engine note at the cost of performance, but some people will be reassured by this gimmick (even if it does slow you down).

Buyers of the Lexus RX will be image-conscious, but will take comfort in the brand's reputation for reliability. It makes a good family car – provided rear headroom isn't a prerequisite – and a delightful motorway cruiser. It doesn't have the off-road capability of Land Rover's many options, nor the efficiency of a plug-in hybrid. This is a road-going SUV.

POCHETTINO HAILS SPURS' CHARACTER

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

MAURICIO POCHETTINO hailed the mentality of his Tottenham Hotspur side after they kept their FA Cup hopes alive by grabbing a late equaliser against Leicester City on Sunday.

Spurs looked to be bowing out of the competition at the first hurdle when they found themselves trailing 2-1 with 89 minutes on the clock at White Hart Lane, but Nathan Dyer was penalised for handling in the box and Harry Kane – who had started the match on the bench – drilled home the resulting spot kick to take the tie to a replay.

Head coach Pochettino said: "I think we feel a little disappointed because, again, we deserved more in the end but we need to be happy that we equalised late in the game.

"You know a team like Leicester will stay deep and counter-attack and they only had one opportunity in the first half and we conceded a goal. That was unbelievable. It was a bit like the Everton match the weekend more when we deserved more in the first half and it finished 1-1.

"In the second half we conceded an early goal and it was difficult because Leicester then believed that they could win the game. It's important to realise that we never give up, we always fight and try to go forward believing we can score. I'm happy we did that.

"There were a lot of players in the team who haven't played consistently in the Premier League and it was an important chance for them to show they can fight for a start in the team."

Pochettino added: "We have another opportunity. We're still alive in the FA Cup. We have a lot of games ahead, but I think we're in a good position to attack all the competitions. We have a strong squad and we have to believe and keep working hard."

Kane's goal was his 50th for Tottenham in all competitions and, while happy to have reached the milestone, the striker hopes that he will have many more to celebrate during his time at White Hart Lane.

Praising his players: Mauricio Pochettino was pleased with Tottenham Hotspur's fighting spirit during their FA Cup tie against Leicester

"I knew I was going to go that way with the penalty," he said. "I didn't want to change my mind, I put my foot through it and it was great to see the ball hit the back of the net.

"I was delighted to see it go in and delighted to score my 50th goal. It's a good achievement, but hopefully it's the first 50 of many and I want to go on and get 100, 150 and so on. That's what I'm looking to do and I'll keep on working hard.

"Leicester defend well, so as soon as they went ahead we knew it was going to be tough and that we would have to be patient – and we were. I thought we created some good chances and finally got the breakthrough towards the end.

"We want to go far in this competition and obviously being 2-1 down we had to try and change it. I was very happy to score the penalty to get the 2-2 draw and now we play them again."

Borough miss out in dramatic encounter

HARINGEY BOROUGH fell short in an eight-goal thriller on Saturday as they were beaten 5-3 at Bury Town in Ryman League Division One North.

Playing just their second match in four weeks following a spate of postponements owing to waterlogged pitches, rapidly improving Borough battled well against one of the pre-season favourites for promotion but ultimately fell short as a Josh Mayhew hat-trick guided the hosts to victory.

Debutant Mayhew took just 14 minutes to make his mark for his new club as he headed in Remi Garrett's cross and he doubled Bury's lead by again heading home a Garrett cross eight minutes later.

Already facing an uphill task,

Borough suffered a further setback in the 29th minute when Dewayne Clarke was harshly dismissed for what was deemed to be a dangerous tackle on Phil Weavers.

The ten men refused to let their heads drop though and the visitors reduced their deficit two minutes before half-time as Dean Fenton latched on to Anthony McDonald's cross and fired into the top corner of the net.

However, Bury restored their two-goal advantage almost immediately as Ollie Hughes' cross was headed in by Ollie Canfer, and they went further ahead in the early stages of the second half – Mayhew completing his hat-trick by tapping in from close range.

Borough still attacked with purpose and twice went close before they did score again on 55 minutes through Rakim Richards' fine free-kick.

A comeback was never a realistic prospect though and the visitors' fate was effectively sealed when Bury added a fifth with seven minutes remaining as Cemal Ramadan's shot slipped under the body of keeper Ashley Harris and into the net.

Fenton grabbed a consolation goal with a looping header deep in stoppage time but it was too little too late for Borough as they ended up with nothing to show for their efforts.

Haringey Borough go to Witham Town on Saturday (3pm), before visiting Dereham Town on Tuesday (7.45pm).

Duo agree new deals with Skolars

JOHN PAXTON and Michael Sykes have become the latest players to re-sign with the London Skolars as they step up their preparations for the new rugby league season.

The Kingstone Press Championship One outfit face their opening pre-season fixture next week when they take on a side representing Super League giants Wigan Warriors in the Capital Challenge at the Honourable Artillery Company ground in the city of London on January 22.

And the Skolars have been handed a boost ahead of the match with the confirmation that utility back Paxton and prop Sykes will be staying with the club.

The duo both originally hail from Cambridgeshire and began their rugby league careers with St Ives Roosters before taking up scholarships with Leeds Met University.

The pair, who joined the Skolars during their time at university, both represented Great Britain students on their winning tour in Australia in 2011 – with Sykes being named man of the match in the series decider.

Both men have become integral parts of the Skolars' match-day squad in recent years, with Paxton having already made more than 100 first-team appearances for the club.

Sykes said: "I've been at the club for a long time and, although I had other offers, I always wanted to stay here as it's a club I love.

"Another major reason for re-signing was our exciting playing group for this season, which has some really good high level experience as well as some exciting youth.

"I think the quality of training and structures put in place by the staff has enhanced this even further and 2016 is going to be a good year, one for fans to be excited about."

The London Skolars follow the match against Wigan by hosting London Broncos in a further pre-season friendly on January 30 and their first competitive game of the season is at York City Knights on March 6.
